The Knickerbecker Yachts Mean Business

When They GoI a for a Race.

Five hundred and eighty-one people who paid, several judges, commoders, and such folks, and a boy two feet long and a foot and a half through went on the iron steamer Sirius up the Sound yesterday to see thirty-five yechts and a tolerably spanking breeze make things lively at the regatts of the Knickerbocker Yacht Club. The small boy's sailor shirt had the words "Culprit Fay" on the bosom. The crew of the sleep of George Matthews, Jr., wore similar suits, and when the Culprit Fay went across the starting line at Port smaller cathoats Ida a. Won, reading the started in the steam launch class the Mystic and Yeda started but both broke down and the Dart, which hadn't thought it worth while to try to beat such little flyers towed them both home, and may claim a winning, as she went over the whole course.

Jersey Yachtsmen Lie at Anchor and Look On The Jersey City Yacht Club had its opening sail yesterday. The club's fleet consisting of five cabin and six open yachts, started from the club house, foot of Jersey avenue, and sailed as far as Owl's Head, where they anchored and saw the passing of the Atlantic Yacht Club's deet. The yachts got hack to the club house at o'clock, and the members and guests sat down to a feast.

HONORS FOR THE SHAMROCK.

She Boats the Rig Sloop Atlantic, and the New Titania, Too. The Atlantic Yacht Club got to windward of its spectacular record as a season opener yesterday. Forty big and little boats, includ-ing the new sloop Shamrock, the Atlantic, the ing the new sloop Shamrock, the Atlantic, the Gracie, and the Fannic, were anchored off Bay Ridge, in two lines parallel with the shore, when, at 10% o'clock, a bang, mingled with a thin flame and a puff of bluish vapor, came out of a little cannon on Commodore's Swan's flagship, the Rover. Up went the club's white and red pennant on the flagstaff on the green-topped bluff, followed by a double-line salute of bangs and puffs on the yachts. There was another and a flag hang from a gun on the bluff, and the fleet was off.

the betting quarters, paddocks, restaurants, club house, and other places where men and women could squeeze into to keep out of the field. It was the twenty-first birthday of the American Jockey Club, and if the love of racing continues to grow the grounds will have to be doubly enlarged to accommodate the sport-ing public or special occasions like yesterday's. The transportation service was lamentably inadequate, both in going and returning. An hour after the races ended thousands were waiting for trains to convey them to the city. and more than three hours elapsed before some of them could reach the City Hall. Tickets to the race course were all sold at the en-trances long before the races began, and money was taken at the gates instead of tickets.

There were sixty bookmakers, four Fronch mutual pool machines, and one stand where auction pools were sold, besides a long row of outside tables devoted to combination tickets.

mutual pool machines, and one stand where auction pools were sold, besides a long row of outside tables devoted to combination tickets, and yet not half the visitors who desired to bet could get within the betting precincta. Uncle Thomas Johnson, who got urthe first trot and sold the first pools in California in 1849, said that he had never seen such a crush on a race course before.

Many popular patrons of the turf looked on the cheerful scene from the judges and timing stands and the section of the quarterstretch alongside the stands. Among them were the Hon, August Belmont, Messrs, A. J. Cassart, J. G. Heckscher, E. Keene, D. Withers, Philip and Michael Dwyer, J. B. and Ben All Haggin, J. G. K. Duer, J. G. K. Lawrence, J. O. Donner, Frank Hall, Capt. W. M. Conner, Capt. J. G. Caster land hosts of others.

The rucing was highly enjoyed, and the roar of voices at each breakaway must have rolled over and across the Hudson and revorberated from the Palisades. The star performance of the day was the race along the homestretch at the finish in the Fordham Handicap between McLaughlin on War Eagle and McCarthy (who landed Dry Monopole winner of the Brooklyn Handicap) on Orifiamme. The rival lockeys rode for all they were worth, sparing neither whip nor spur. They left, the ruck lengths behind, McCarthy winning the race by a nose. The outburst at the finish was tremendous, and then came the happiest minute in Jimmie Rows's life, Rowe used to train for the Dwyers. He trained both Orifiamme and old War Eagle for yesterday's race.

BICTCLE ROAD BACING.

Wheelmen from Three States Spinning Over a New Jersey Turnpike. The village of Irvington, N. J., was in vaded yesterday by 1,500 cyclists and as many mounted spectators, drawn thither from Brooklyn, Jersey City, Newark, Philadelphia, Elizabeth, Orange, Morristown, Somerville, Plainfield, and in fact everywhere within thirty miles to attend the annual Inter-State team road race of 25 miles up hill and down. The course was five miles of hard and smooth macadame between Irvingion and Millburn, starting at a half a mile west of the tavern at Hilton. There is a mile of stiff hill climbing between Irvington and Hilton, and west of the between Irvington and Hilton, and west of the starting point the road rivals a toboggan alide in steepness. But one mile of the course can be spoken of as level.

Forty wheelmen were entered for the race, but when the start was made only twenty-eight men appeared at the scratch. The start was from a push-off, and the lead was taken by C. A. Stenken of the Hudson County Wheelmen. He was closely pressed by Harry J. Hall of the Kings County Wheelmen, who kept within five or six feet of Stenken, and used his big adversary as a pace maker. Once, when Stenken slacked up suddenly, Hall, in danger of fouling, piled his brake with such force that he took a header and tore his brosches from the hip to the knee, scraching and braising his leg as well. He mounted and soon resumed his position in the lee of his adversary, and kept there to within 200 yards of the finish, when, with redoubled force, he sped past Stenken and over the tape. His time was I hour 38 minutes 53 seconds, and Stenken was two second behind.

Five minutes after the riders in the road race were started, Charles E. Kiuge was sent off to make a road record for a tricycle. He beat the best road record for twenty-five miles by nearly eleven minutes, his time being 1:34:40%.

ROSS AREAD OF HOSMER. A Close Finish in their Match Testerday at Bowery Ray Heach.

Wallace Ross and George Hosmer pulled a shell race off the new sea wall at Bowery Bay Beach, yesterday afternoon. The race was not started until e o'clock, and by that time the large crowd on the grounds had been increased by the arrival of several boat loads from the scenes of the aquatic events neares town. The course was from Moran's boat house to a boat anchored off Sanford's Points—comewhere between half and three-quarters of a mile away—and return, twice. The wind was off shore, and the water was fairly smooth. The race was announced as being for a purse of $1,000, the entire amount to go to the winner. Both man pulled in cedar shells.

Howner caught the water first, and had a little the better of the race all the way to the stakeboat. He turned about 15 seconds ahead of Ross. From the referee's boat it looked as though Ross fouled both Hosmer and led him part of the way down, but Hosmer forged to the front and again turned shead of Ross. Coming up to the stakeboat on the second round Ross took the lead and turned a boat length a head. The lead he increased to two boat lengths through Hosmer put on a spuri and drew up even with Ross, and the mas went along together for a shord distance, each pulling a strong but not rapid stroks. Within a few rods of finalish Ross put a little more power into his stroks, and chemic Than a quarter of a boat length was: First turn, 8 minutes 12 seconds; second turn, 7 minutes 80 seconds; third turn, 10 minutes 20 seconds; third turn, 10 minutes 20 seconds; third turn, 10 minutes 20 seconds in the first of conjecture. The referee was Daniel Kelly; starter, George Kortoni; judges at stakeboat, John Robinson and Harry Herber; judge at finish, Alex Moran.

The Town and Country Club opened the new grounds given them by Cyrus W. Field, at Irvington, yesterday. The programme of this club for the summer will include cricket, lacrosse, base ball, quoits, tennis, croquet, and archery.
